

spread_{the}word

goes to

Molten Festival

A weekend of FREE literature events to inspire the writer in you spread^{the}word goes to

Molten Festival

A weekend of FREE literature events to inspire the writer in you

Saturday 27 September

Introduction to Blogging

10.30am – 12.30pm, Barking Learning Centre

Fancy setting up a blog but not sure where to start?
Already have a blog and want ideas to develop it?
Join writer and blogger Yemisi Blake for an introduction to the world of blogging. No experience necessary.

Love Books?

10.30am – 11.15am, Rectory Library

4.00pm – 4.45pm, Thames View Library

Love books? Love reading? Join poet Aoife Mannix for a chance to chat and write about your favourite books in a fun, informal environment.

Paper Birds, Paper Words

11.00am – 4.00pm, theBROADWAY, Barking

Create poetry sculptures with poet Francesca Beard and origami artist, Monika Cilmi.

Getting Started

4.00pm – 5.00pm, Barking Learning Centre

Do you have a story, poem, script or novel in you?
Have you always wanted to write? Join writer Yemisi Blake, for some inspirational tips on getting started and keeping going.

Sunday 28 September

Sunday morning storytelling for all the family

11.00am – 12.15pm, Barking Learning Centre,

Children's Library, Ground Floor

Sally Pomme Clayton tells 'Tales told in Tents': stories of magic horses, demons, warrior princesses, and the water of life... A vibrant performance weaving myths, fairytales and cultural descriptions from distant parts of the world. Open to all ages. Children must be accompanied by a parent/carer.

Molten Stories

2.00pm – 4.00pm, Barking Learning Centre, Gallery

Yemisi Blake, Aoife Mannix, Francesca Beard, and Sally Pomme-Clayton will be collecting stories from people in Barking and Dagenham over the weekend. They will create straight-talking stories, tall tales, and pithy poems inspired by the borough, to be presented at this finale.

There are loads more free events and activities this weekend and throughout Molten Festival. Go to www.lbbd.gov.uk/molten to find out more.

spread^{the}word

spreadtheword.org.uk

